Session #: 1 Date of Session: October 30, 2019 # of hours: 1

Type of education activity (1:1 ambulatory, program meeting, etc.) / Name of education program: 1:1, watercolor pencils activity

Location / hospital*: At home

Student's Initials / # of participants*: B.S./1

Education level of student / participants (UG, PG, etc.):* Beginner

Positive aspects of session: After my first week of INTAPT course, I started painting again in watercolor.

I found my equipment and practiced some techniques. Afterwards, I taught a friend how to do it.

Our shared interest in painting really facilitated the session. Also, we had chosen a quiet time in the day.

We had at least an hour to work. Finally, I knew very well the material as well as the techniques I wanted to practice with her.

Difficulties of session: The learning objectives were not specific enough. At the end of the session,

I wanted her to paint a simple image (e.g. an apple). However, she wanted to do a much more complicated project.

Unfortunately we ran out of time and she was disappointed with the final result.

Reflection and interpretation of session (analysis): I think the session went very well. My friend really enjoyed the activity and she would like to continue doing watercolor. I was well prepared for the session and I knew the subject well

However, I believe that more specific learning objectives would have avoided misunderstanding and disappointment.

Consideration of future strategies for managing similar sessions: _____

Clearly explain my goals, complete a learning contract, ask the student if they agree or if they want to make some changes.
